

Real colloidal silver

Contributed by happyhouse2
Saturday, 09 January 2010

The benefits of colloidal silver have been known for centuries, with many throughout the passage of time experiencing the benefits of colloidal silver treatment. This product has unique abilities, and these include being powerfully antibacterial, antiviral and antifungal. Even some of the most powerful biological threats known to man such as anthrax and MRSA are no match for the ever vigilant colloidal silver water. A good quality colloidal silver preparation will contain both ions and colloids. When silver colloidal solutions are composed from 40% of suspended silver and 60% of ionic silver, you can rest assured that you have a quality mixture. These days many of us want to know how to make colloidal silver, but still the science is fickle – with it safer to purchase a pre prepared quality product. Manufacturers now have created a colloidal silver gel and also a colloidal silver nasal spray. Many of us would be surprised to know that colloidal silver preparations were the number one solution for doctors from around the turn of the century, right up until the time that penicillin came onto the market. Needless to say that big pharma companies, now having a compound that initially was very effective and more importantly patentable – the colloidal silver use didn't stand a chance. Regardless, the many colloidal silver benefits are irrefutable, with this colloidal silver cure being here to stay…